

How did you tend to associate temperature with security?

How did you tend to associate vibration with security?

Would you like having temperature and vibration at the same time in some cases? And if so, when?